with dishes. She was always smashin' dishes. Couldn't seem to help it. She'd 'cry and moan and try to do better, but cups and things would jump out of her bands. And that did make old Mis' Yoder mad! What made her mad was that everybody else paid their help wages and could take the broken dishes out of their wages, but she couldn't, because she didn't pay Sally nothin."

"But she done all she could. She kept track of everything Sally broke in a free medicine almanac, and every little while she showed it to Sally to sort of keep har spirits down.

"Well, Sally up and got engaged, and she was goin' off to be married right away, but old Mis' Yoder set up a great howl. She said Sally was her only relative. and it wasn't Christian. And Mis Yoder said she was gettin' old and would die soon, and she was goin' to leave Sally something in
